

I really hope the FCC decides NOT to implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's current Telephone Privacy law has worked to significantly decrease the volume of completely unwanted and unsolicited telemarketing calls received at my home and I appreciate this very much. Even having an unpublished number was not an effective deterrent and when Indiana's Governor announced there was an 800 number to call so we could get our phone numbers placed on DO NOT CALL lists that telemarketing outfits purchase I was thrilled. That action has made a huge difference in the quality of my home time. That's MY time and I resent annoying people calling to try and sell me stuff I don't need or worse yet to attempt to pull bait and switch tactics on unsuspecting victims - yes, this still happens. Thanks for taking my views as an Indiana Tax Payer into consideration.
